LONDON IS LEADING DESTINATION 2009

Every year across the UK, passengers are reminded to be safe, especially in the hours of darkness, when travelling by taxi. This is particularly relevant at Christmas when more people take more taxis and many may have been drinking. Festive spirits are taken advantage of by bogus illegal minicab drivers, looking to make money. In London, the Safer Travel at Night campaign continues, but it is important that educating the passenger to use only licensed vehicles remains a priority. From the taxi trade’s point of view trying to ensure there are enough taxis available for passengers.

To taxi drivers, Christmas will mean many different things. For some it will be a time of working as much as possible to make as much money as possible before the January kipper season comes. For others it may mean more bookings from their radio circuit. But it is important that passengers are aware of the dangers they face if they should choose to use an unlicensed minicab. The taxi trade has been actively working to ensure that late night travellers do not get into unlicensed, uninsured vehicles across venues in the West End

ALL HAIL THE TAXI!

All Hail the taxi on a cold night,
Passengers should choose right,
Unlicensed and illegal cabs
are not the answer,
Christmas should be a time of cheer,
So hail a London taxi,
Get home safe and sound,
Enjoy the festive season,
All Hail the taxi!

in recent months. This should bring benefits to the trade in terms of an increase in revenue.

Passengers looking to hail a taxi on the streets welcome the familiar “TAXI” roof sign and it brings comfort and joy to all especially on a cold, wet December or January evening.

Matthew Cheyne, International Market Development Director at LTI, knows that the iconic shape of the traditional British taxi is well recognised around the world. As LTI continues to seek further foreign markets for its iconic vehicle to help secure the future of the LTI product, Matthew said: “Here at LTI, we all wish the taxi trade in London, across the UK and around the world a peaceful Christmas. Across the UK licensing authorities are reminding passengers to make sure they use a licensed taxi or private hire vehicle and nothing is as reassuring as the iconic LTI taxi.”
